See Crisis For Nazi Party As Food Shortage Grows

THE EYES AND THE SMILE are what are making Sybil Jason, the coming child star of the movies. Can you help from returning Sybil's winning smile. Sybil's eyes flash with glee when she laughs, and she's had plenty of occasion to laugh recently what with the many talkies she's being featured in.

DR. SIMON FLEXNER, retired head of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, took a prominent part in the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the founding of Bryn Mawr College. Pictured with him are left, Dr. Florence Rena Sabin, noted anatomist, who was awarded the M. Carey Thomas $5,000 prize in research for the third time, and center, President Marion Edwards Park.

THE NEWEST FAD in Hollywood is bowling, and even the female stars are not excepted. Here you see Joan Blondell in the act of rolling one down the alleys. However, this picture was taken at Palm Springs where the screen heroine is resting, but since when is bowling restful.

Miss Evelyn Foreman

THEY DIDN'T MAKE ANY MISTAKE when they named Miss Evelyn Foreman, of Kansas City, the "official greeter" to welcome alumni at the University of Missouri's homecoming game with Oklahoma at Columbia, Mo. The sparkling brown eyes and the attractive smile won the honor for the Southern lass.

PRICES RISE; UNEMPLOYED UP 1 MILLION

BERLIN (Spl.)—The Nazi regime is in a more precarious position today than at any time since 1933.

With the coming of winter, and with the decreasing supply of food-stuffs, the tenancy of the Nazis in power was being seriously threatened by a relentless march of economic conditions which is gradually growing out of their power.

1. Rising prices and food shortage is leading to minor strikes and to anti-Nazi demonstrations.

2. Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk, finance minister, appealed to the world to open its doors to German exports. "The world must know," he said, "that we cannot exist without increased exports."

3. Unemployment figures indicate an increase of over a million in unemployment during the winter.

4. Frederick T. Birchall, correspondent of the New York Times declared, "Public dissatisfaction is undoubtedly growing. It is unorganized and leaderless, but it is rising like ground water, which unless checked in time undermines even the most solid foundations."

In face of the growing shortage of food, Nazi leaders are attempting to ignore the increased grumbling. "We are making history, not butter," Dr. Joseph Goebbels declared. General Hermann Goering, the air minister, announced, "The Iron National Socialist will bend a matter. We will not capitulate before a mere shortage of butter or a small matter of too few pigs."

Underlying the approaching crisis is the inability of the Nazi government to continue its army building operations. At a loss where to find funds to continue to finance her enormous army, the Nazis have been unable to continue to pour additional funds into the armament industry.

No one is willing to predict the result of the present situation. Even if the Nazi regime weathers the present storm, business leaders see no improvement for the immediate future. Of the numerous Jewish firms being liquidated, the majority are not being replaced by Aryan firms, but the business and trade done by the firms are allowed to lapse.

Whatever the strength of the Nazi party, a continued shortage of food and money will slowly sap the party's strength.

ELLENBOGEN IN PHILIPPINES
MANILA, P. I. (Spl.)—Prominent in the party representing the United States at the inaugural of the commonwealth government here, is Representative Henry Ellenbogen of Pennsylvania. Vice President John N. Garner, is heading the delegation.

San Francisco Honors 2 Ministers

Bishop And Rabbi Feted

LOS ANGELES, Cal. (Spl.)—On one night last week Jewish leaders of the city joined in honoring a bishop, and the following night Christian and lay leaders of the city joined in honoring a rabbi.

MAGNIN

The two men honored were Bishop James C. Baker and Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin. Paying tribute to his completion of twenty years of service in the pulpit, Los Angeles bowed to Dr. Magnin amid speeches of praise at a public banquet. On the program were Mayor Shaw, Bishop Cantwell, of the Catholic Diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego, Bishop Steven, of the Los Angeles Episcopal Diocese, Dr. R. B. Von Klein Smid, president of the University of Southern California, and other notables. United States District Judge Holzner was toastmaster.

The preceding night Rabbi Magnin, Judge Holzner, Rabbi Isadore Isaacson, Mendel Silberberg, Eddie Cantor, Rabbi Kohn, Marco Newmark, president of the Los Angeles Jewish Community, and numerous other Jewish leaders participated in a banquet in honor of Bishop Baker. Bishop Baker reported on his tour of inspection in Russia and Germany.

Kiser Rites Thursday

Funeral services were held Thursday for Sol S. Kiser, business and banking pioneer of Indianapolis, who died early Tuesday at his home, 3736 Washington Blvd., following a heart attack. Burial was in the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation Cemetery. Rabbi Morris Feuerlicht officiated.

Mr. Kiser, who was former vice president of the Meyer-Kiser Bank, retired from business about ten years ago. He was 77 years old.

Active in various philanthropies and charities, Mr. Kiser was president and trustee of the Jewish Orphans Home in Cleveland, Ohio, an honorary executive of the Community Fund, a former president of the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation, and a former head of the B'nai B'rith. He also was a trustee of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives in Denver, Colo. He was a member of the Elks Lodge, Broadmoor Country Club, Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade and other local groups. Mr. Kiser was active in Indianapolis civic affairs, and served as state treasurer of drives for World War funds.

Survivors are his wife, and two children, Julian J. Kiser, and Mrs. Ruth Kiser Cohn, both of this city; two brothers, Dr. Edgar F. Kiser and Simon L. Kiser, and two sisters, Miss Caroline Kiser, and Mrs. George A. Solomons, and four grandchildren.

Dummies Must Be Non-Aryan

BERLIN (JTA)—Dummies used to display clothing in shop windows should have recognizable Semitic features, suggests Der Stürmer, vitriolic anti-Semitic weekly owned by Julius Streicher, in its current issue.

The paper proposes that the Nazi Trade Association assume the duty of seeing to it that no Jewish clothier dare insult the "Aryan" race by exhibiting dummies with "Aryan" features.

Calls Jews Great

DEAN INGE

Lauds Jews, Flays Nazis

LONDON (Spl.)—Terming Jews "the most gifted race in the world," the Very Rev. Dr. W. R. Inge, former dean of St. Paul's expressed puzzlement at what he terms "this atavistic outbreak in Germany," in an article on "Jew-Baiting" in the Evening Standard.

The Gloomy Dean, as he is popularly known, praises the record of Jews in philosophy, literature, science and music and heaps ridicule upon the Germans for persecuting them.

"I am completely puzzled by this atavistic outbreak in Germany," he writes. "We can be silly enough ourselves at times; but when we want to be medieval, we are content to array our clergy in the Court dress of a Byzantine nobleman; we have got beyond the baiting of Jews, the burning of witches, and the torture of witnesses."

"The Germans, who are certainly not fanatical Christians," Dean Inge continues, "have invented a new excuse for their barbarities. The Jews are to be banned on eugenic grounds. This is perhaps the most ridiculous pretext ever invented. For the Jews, with the possible exception of the Scotch, are the most highly endowed race in the world, in practical ability."

"The Jews have a very fine record in philosophy, imaginative literature, natural science, and, above all, in music. In painting they excel rather as connoisseurs than as artists. But on the whole, they are perhaps the most gifted race in the world."

Charry Is B'nai B'rith Speaker

A talk by Rabbi Elias Charry featured the most successful B'nai B'rith meeting in months Wednesday night in the Y.M.H.A. An unusually large crowd, composed of members, their wives and friends, heard Rabbi Charry deliver an enlightening talk on "The Jew Faces His World."

Body Identified

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind. (Spl.)—After lying unidentified in a funeral parlor for more than two weeks, the body of a man killed by a train was identified by Louis Bressler, of Brooklyn, N. Y., as that of his son, Morris, 24. The body was taken to Brooklyn for burial.

Mr. Bressler said his son was a violinist, and had not been heard from since September. Coroner Coots said Bressler was apparently thrown beneath the wheels of the train as he attempted to alight in the dark.

Force Firms To Donate

BERLIN (JTA)—Jewish business firms were ordered to contribute to the Nazi winter relief campaign despite the fact they are excluded from enjoying the benefits.

An official order seen by a Jewish Telegraphic Agency correspondent states that while Jews as individuals are free to contribute to Jewish relief funds, this is not the case with firms controlled by Jews "since they enjoy the benefit of being patronized by Aryans."

The order is expected to affect seriously the special Jewish drive for winter relief, which has until now been accorded a sympathetic reception by individual Jews as well as among Jewish firms.

Meanwhile, a quota of 1,000,000 marks was set at the Berlin headquarters of the Jewish relief drive. Jewish leaders expect, judging from contributions hitherto received, that the goal will be reached if no unexpected obstacles are placed in the way of the campaign.

Emulating tactics employed in the general relief campaign, relief headquarters declared last Sunday a one-day with the expectation that money saved on meals would be donated to the relief fund.

Club Night Dance Set For Sunday At Kirshbaum Center

Kirshbaum Community Center will hold a "Club Night" Membership dance, in the large auditorium of the building, Meridian at Twenty-third Street, Sunday evening, November 17, from 9:30 until 12:30. Music will be furnished by Sherry Watson and his band.

The affair is being sponsored by the Aleph Zedeck Aleph and the Emanon Juniors. It is under the auspices of the Jewish Community Center Association.

Members and escorts will be admitted without charge. Subscription for non-members is seventy-five cents per couple.

Sachar Lecture Set

Dr. Abram L. Sachar will deliver the final lecture in his series on "The Jew Faces the World," Tuesday, November 26. He will discuss "The Challenge of Current Events," in Kirshbaum Community Center.

The lecture is free to members. Non-members are admitted for a nominal charge.

Monash Hailed As Great General Of World War

By ALVIN HELLMAN
LONDON (JTA)—There is a popular story about Hitler addressing a mass meeting in the days before he came to power and asking himself up into a frenzy against the Jews.

"The Jews lost the war for Germany," he screamed.

A little Jew in the front row sagely nodded agreement. "Too many Jewish officers," he explained.

"What do you mean, too many Jewish officers, you fool," Hitler snorted at him. "Don't you know there weren't any Jewish officers in the German Army?"

"Sure, I know," was the answer. "Too many Jewish officers on the other side."

And today, when the true history of the World War is coming to light in the letters and memoirs of the leading participants and official records, no longer necessarily state secrets, are being published, proof of that statement is being furnished. Today, credit

Walks To Palestine With Four Cents In His Pocket
KOWEE, Poland (Spl.)—Moses Livzatz, 14-year-old Jewish orphan of this city, who left here two months ago on a trip by foot to Palestine, was reported to have arrived in Rumania. An intrepid youth, Moses, had only twenty groshen (four cents) in his pocket when he left here.

A.A.U. Meet Stops Nazis

BERLIN (JTA)—Promulgation of the detailed regulations under the Nuremberg marriage and citizenship laws is being delayed until after the convention of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States in New York December 6, it was learned on the best authority. Nazi officials are anxious not to provoke further anti-German sentiment until the A.A.U. decides on participation in the 1936 Berlin Olympics, it was learned.

A 416-page book, published with the sanction of the Nazi Party and replete with anti-Jewish libels, made its appearance here, called "The Black Book" and has for its subtitle "The Jews in Germany."

A preface to the volume, written by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, states that it is intended not only for internal consumption but for foreign propaganda, especially for participants and guests of the Olympic Games. His preface may prove embarrassing to Reich Chancellor Hitler who promised Count Baillet-Latour that Jews would be given a fair deal.

The "Black Book" is hailed in an editorial in the Voelkischer Beobachter, official Nazi party organ and Hitler's personal property as a "fundamental work," which resents Jews as "traitors, atheists, and moral criminals."

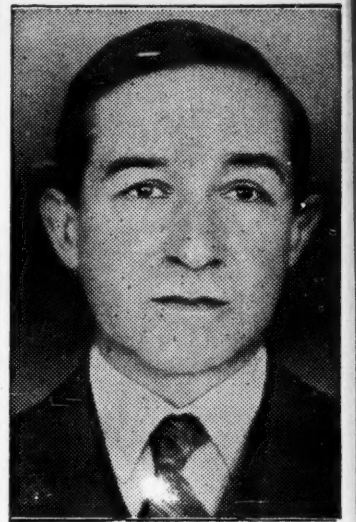

The Beobachter states that the book is "our new weapon for combating effectively Jewish misrepresentations of facts. It is written in the spirit of the words pronounced by Dr. Goebbels at Nuremberg."

The volume, the Beobachter urges, should be used "as a handbook in every German home in order that no one forgets how the Jews misled Germany for fifteen years."

An appeal is also made by the Nazi newspaper to mail as a Christmas gift "at least one good book" to Germans residing abroad in order to imbue them with the Nazi spirit.

The "Black Book" is divided into nine chapters which describes the Jews as "swindlers, criminals, leaders of political corruption, Communists, Socialists, pornographers and degenerates."

Strives For Peace

DR. MAGNES

Palestine Peace Head

JERUSALEM (Spl.)—What may mean a permanent place for Palestine in the leadership in the quest for world peace was given an impetus when Dr. Judah L. Magnes, president of the Hebrew University here, raised his voice against the employment by the Palestinian Government of sanctions against Italy.

Dr. Magnes asserted that Palestine should try to become the voice and conscience of the world's religions rather than engage in warlike operations.

Palestine, Dr. Magnes declared, should be eliminated from the League of Nations sanctions against Italy.

Prodigy Read At 2

NEW YORK (Spl.)—It is not every family that can boast a prodigy, but what would you say to two prodigies in one family.

That is exactly the case in the menage of David Freedman, comic-strip writer, of 211 Central Park West.

Last year Benedict Freedman, at 14, entered Columbia University to be the youngest member of the class of '38. This year young Noel Freedman, only 13 years old, is the youngest member of this year's freshman class at College of the City of New York.

"Learn to read when you're young. Say about 2 years old." That was Noel's prescription for early scholarship. Noel declared that he spent only about forty-five minutes daily with his lessons.

3 RABBIS TO ETHIOPIA

minion general. But I knew nothing of this at the time... He was a civilian soldier when the war broke out... he later explained he had General Monash in mind. It was thought, however, that Lloyd George was speaking more from pique he felt toward the British military men than from an appreciation of General Monash's ability.

But increasing knowledge through publication of previously unknown facts reveals that from whatever reason Lloyd George spoke, he spoke correctly and as Captain Liddell Hart wrote:

Honor To War Dead

LONDON (Spl.)—While two Jewish holders of the Victoria Cross laid a poppy wreath on the Cenotaph here in memory of the British Jews who died during the World War, five thousand Jewish war veterans bared their heads in reverence.

The ceremonies marked the sixth annual memorial exercises of the Jewish Ex-Servicemen's League.

Jews In Advance

NEW YORK (Spl.)—The 77th Division, the army corps that penetrated the German line farther than any other unit, was 40 per cent Jewish, Colonel N. Brasted declared at Armistice Day ceremonies here.

The casualty list of American Jews was 14,000, Col. Brasted pointed out, and 2,800 of these made the supreme sacrifice for their country.

Carry Jewish Flags

SEATTLE, Wash. (Spl.)—Jewish flags marched side by side with flags of other nations in Seattle's celebration of Armistice Day.

Carrying the Jewish flags were the local lodge of B'nai B'rith, members of Sons of Israel, Boy Scout Troop No. 46 and the Fraternal Order of Ashphard. The marchers carried American flags also.

Name Chairman For Card Party

The regular business meeting of the Delta Rho Sorority was held last week at the home of the Misses Ruth and Goldie Lenowitz. The following committee chairmen were appointed to make arrangements for the annual card party on December 4:

Ruth Lenowitz, raffle tickets. Reva Schneider, card party tickets.

Goldie Lenowitz, Pauline Patrick, and Reva Schneider, prizes. Rose Becker, publicity. Theresa Leebowitz and Reva Naperstick, refreshments.

At this week's regular business meeting of the Delta Rho Sorority, a celebration was held in honor of the organization receiving its charter. The meeting was held at the home of Miss Rose Becker. Plans were discussed for the card party to be held at the Antlers on December 4. A social hour followed the meeting.

Heads ORT Drive

DAVID A. BROWN

The campaign to raise $500,000 for the American ORT is getting under way under the leadership of David A. Brown, who resigned as publisher of the American Hebrew to undertake his new task.

Weitz Opens Lecture Series At Kirshbaum

The Advisory Council of the J.C.C.A. Communal Building will inaugurate a series of lectures in the Cultural Activities Department, beginning at 8:30 o'clock next Tuesday night, November 19th.

"Moscow and Berlin: A Tale of Two Cities" will be the subject of the talk presented by Rabbi Martin M. Weitz, director of the Hillel Foundation at Northwestern University. He will discuss the meaning of capitalism, fascism, socialism, and communism, indicating their relationship to one another.

Rabbi Weitz is a graduate of Hebrew Union College with the degrees of B.H. and Rabbi; and of the University of Cincinnati with the degrees of A.B. and A.M. He has also attended the Colorado State Teachers College and the University of Denver.

U.S. Papers Flayed

BERLIN (JTA)—The Schwarze Korps, organ of Hitler's black-uniformed elite guards, last week published a vitriolic attack upon the American press, declaring that only the Hearst press dares print the truth about Germany.

The paper also sharply assailed Mayor LaGuardia of New York, calling him "an Italian Jew."

Name Fannie Hurst

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Fannie Hurst, famous American novelist, was chosen president of the Author's Guild at the annual luncheon and meeting for a two-year term.

Notre Dame, Commonweal Urge Catholics From Games

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (Spl.)—The Notre Dame Scholastic, student publication, editorially voiced its opposition to the participation of the United States in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin.

In the leading editorial, headed, "America and the Olympic Games," the publication urged America to withhold participation unless the scene of the games was moved from Germany. The editorial pointed out the possibility of international discord as the result of untoward occurrences at the games.

NEW YORK (JTA)—"No Catholic can share in these games, either as a participant or a supporter, without aiding and abetting an effort to destroy the Christian faith," declares George N. Shuster, managing editor of Commonweal, influential Catholic weekly, in an article entitled "General Sherrill and the Olympics" in the issue appearing this Friday.

The argument from "the Catholic point of view" as presented by Mr. Shuster follows in part:

"First. The Berlin Olympics of 1936 are no ordinary athletic games, but are designed to reveal to the world in a grandiose way, what the Third Reich has done for the adolescent male.

"Second. Being what they are, the Berlin Olympics have an evident and sinister anti-Catholic purpose. These games are to set the seal of approval upon the radically anti-Christian Nazi doctrine of youth."

At another point he declares, "It seems to me quite incredible that the Catholic clergy of these United States offer incense at the altar of Baal, provided they realize in time what issues are at stake."

Replying to the statement of Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, member of the International Olympic Committee, that Jewish opposition to the Olympics would precipitate a wave of anti-Semitism here, Mr. Shuster declares:

"Cowardice beyond compare and hardness of heart deadlier than any that once appalled Jehovah would be rightly attributed to a people who, lest the shadow of some far-off possible pogrom creep nearer to them, voted to overlook the outrages made into law by Hitler. I repeat: if it is possible to insult the Jew of these United States, then General Sherrill has insulted him."

US Pioneers In Warsaw

WARSAW (JTA)—A group of twenty-eight American pioneers bound for Palestine, who had cancelled passage on an Italian liner because of President Roosevelt's warning, arrived here Tuesday on the Gdynia-American liner Pilsudski. They were given a banquet at the headquarters of the Hechalutz (Palestine pioneer) Organization.

The youths are joining a group of 700 Polish emigrants going to Palestine by way of Constanza, Rumanian Black Sea port.

Zionist Fund Reaches $1,000

With $1,100 of their $2,500 goal raised, the Indianapolis Zionist District was looking forward to the successful completion of the campaign which will enable three German families to go to Palestine.

The campaign, Zionist officials announced, is being carried on quietly.

The next meeting of the Indianapolis Zionist District will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday night, November 21, in Beth El Zedeck Temple. A noted speaker will address the group, and an interesting cultural program will be presented.

2,100 Chanukah Celebration Set

NEW YORK (JTA)—The Jewish Education Association will celebrate the 2,100th anniversary of the Chanukah Festival with a dinner at the Hotel Astor Dec. 22, it was decided at a meeting of the society's board of directors.

A resolution adopted by the board calls attention to the "millennial anniversary" and urges Jews throughout the world to observe the festival which commemorates the victory in 165 B.C. of Judas Maccabeus over the Syrian Emperor Antiochus IV.

Plane Trip Is Prize

SEATTLE, Wash. (Spl.)—A new departure in prizes for membership contests was initiated by the local lodge of B'nai B'rith when it was announced that an airplane trip would be awarded the member of B'nai B'rith securing the largest number of new members.

The airplane trip which will be paid for by the lodge will take the winner to the convention next June in Butte, Mont.

Helene Mayer Deliberately Sabotaged The Movement Against Olympic Participation

Confronted by every evidence of a despicable apostasy and even a clear indication of collusion with Nazi authorities, Jewish lay leaders, rabbis and the Anglo-Jewish press have taken it upon themselves to make a martyr of Helene Mayer, the half-Jewish women's fencing champion, whose recent decision to fence for Germany in the 1936 Olympics has practically decapitated the movement against participation by the United States in the Games.

Previous to her decision, every articulate force in American Jewry pointed to Miss Mayer as an undeniable example of a Jew, who although of championship calibre, was being denied the opportunity of displaying her skill in sports because of a political situation. From the pulpit, press and through the radio, it was emphasized that although Theodor Lewald had reiterated that Miss Mayer had been invited, she maintained time and again that no invitation had been tendered her. Yet when she did finally accept the invitation, the announcement was made from Berlin first, the same day that Miss Mayer denied for the nth time Lewald's assertion that she would compete for Germany.

Jewish apologists have attributed many motives to Miss Mayer. We hope they are all true. But we do know this. Although Miss Mayer deliberately shunned martyrdom, American Jewry is foisting it on her. Yet martyrdom, in itself, presupposes a willing sacrifice.

The American Hebrew, one of the many publications, apologized for Miss Mayer by stating that her participation under the swastika will "shame Hitler, himself, into admission that he is wronging the Jews of Germany."

To be a champion in any sport requires not only physical aptitude, but native intelligence and courage. Helen Mayer is a world champion. She is intelligent. She has decided to throw the weight of her athletic prowess to Hitler's account. That decision had only one meaning.

If Helene Mayer wished, as so many are trying to impute to her, to aid the fight against holding the Olympics in Berlin, The Spokesman can think of any number of ways she might have furthered this purpose other than the one she chose. However, it was her decision, it's her ability, and it's her Fatherland.

Helene Mayer still could issue a statement, or make a demand which might save the anti-Olympics movement and the faces of American Jewish leaders. The Spokesman doubts, however, that Miss Mayer will do anything at anytime to hamper the holding of the Games in Berlin next year.

If it were for no other reason than her fortitude, U. S. Jewry should respond liberally to the sale of Mrs. A. Bengis', "I Am a Rabbi's Wife." When her husband, Rabbi Abraham Bengis, was stricken with a recurring heart ailment, Mrs. Bengis wrote the booklet to realize funds to continue his much-needed medical treatment. The book, which sells for $2.00, is revealingly interesting. It may be purchased through The Spokesman, or by writing directly to Mrs. A. Bengis, Moodus, Conn.

Meant Well But Got His Tongue Twisted

Commenting on the large number of Rabbis who have forsaken the ministry for other professions, Rabbi Julius Mark, of Nashville, writes in The Observer that these men, "simply can't take it." The men whom Rabbi Mark so labels as lacking in fortitude include Lewis Browne, author; Dr. Samuel Margoshes, editor of The Jewish Day, Dr. Judah L. Magnes, head of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, Dr. Solomon Lowenstein, executive director of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of New York, Morris D. Waldman, secretary of the American Jewish Committee, Joseph S. Kornfeld, former minister to Persia and many others.

The inference from Rabbi Mark's observation is that success in the rabbinate is more difficult than success in any of the fields in which the men above have risen to leadership. Rabbi Mark closes his remarks with a plea to congregations to make easier the plight of rabbis. "Congregations," he says, "might make note of the situation and cultivate a more sympathetic and co-operative spirit in their relations with their spiritual leaders." In other words if congregations don't pave the way for their rabbis with cushions, more and more of these men of God will go out and edit million dollar papers, become university presidents or write best-sellers.

No. The correct deduction from the facts marshalled by Rabbi Mark, is that the rabbinate is a splendid training ground for success in other professions. Lacking the real feeling for God, or lacking a legitimate opportunity for advancement, these men became discouraged with the ministry and applied their talents to occupations for which their native ability made them better fitted, and for which their rabbinical training gave them greater opportunity for success.

Grounds For Divorce?

This story will probably bring a flock of denials . . . since it's that kind of story. . . . But when Hadassah holds its convention at Cleveland late this month, its basic truth will be confirmed. . . . The story concerns Hadassah's quest for a new pet project. . . . The hard-working women Zionists decided their best bet would be the Youth Aliyah movement. . . . They conducted negotiations with the Bureau for the Placement of German Jewish Children in Palestine to the end that Hadassah would take over the entire task of training, transporting and settling the refugee children in Palestine. . . . When Mrs. Rose Jacobs, president of Hadassah, returned from Palestine she had with her, if our information is correct, a contract with the Bureau. . . . But that was far from the end of it. . . . Certain individuals in the Z.O.A., to which Hadassah has been married (for better or worse) for some years, got wind of the project and decided that it was "too tremendous" a task for the women to undertake and that the menfolk were better suited for that sort of thing anyway. . . . So the cables began to burn between here and Jerusalem and the upshot of it was: one cable to Mrs. Jacobs (signed by Dr. Georg Landauer, secretary of the Central Bureau for the Settlement of German Jewish Refugees in Palestine) which bluntly informed her that the deal was off—The ZOA publicity department worked day and night to rush out pamphlets and other literature telling all about the Youth Aliyah movement and how the ZOA was taking charge of it. . . . And now the insiders are doing a lot of conjecturing about the whole business—the chief conjecture being the unkindest of them all. . . . Consciously risking our scalp, here it is. . . . The ZOA brilliant, feeling the need of something they could dramatize, now that they were on their own in the matter of the funds campaign, decided the Youth Aliyah movement was a "natural. . . . And we'll have to hand it to them, at that, they've got a nose for what will make the headlines. . . . But, we can't help wondering about it all, will the desire for the headlines lead to a divorce with the faithful frau of many years? . . . The frau, we have it on the best of authority, is burning up and can you blame her? . . .

Tin Cans And the Boycott

Samuel Untermyer and G. E. Harriman of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League should be keenly interested in this. . . . It's about some tin cans. . . . Lots of them, in fact. . . . They're coming in from Germany, getting loaded full of fruits and other nice things, and being shipped back to Germany. . . . Here's the low-down on it. . . . A German importer had for some time been bringing over to the Reich shipload after shipload of Del Monte canned goods. . . . He was making a swell business out of it. . . . Then the German Government, interested in piling up a favorable trade balance, put the screws on imports. . . . The aforesaid importer scurried over here and informed the Del Monte people that his Government said that if Del Monte wanted to get its product into Germany, they'd have to arrange to take German goods in exchange. . . . Del Monte agreed that this would be fair enough, but there was nothing they could purchase, since fruit and vegetables was their only stock in trade and it was out of the question to import those. . . . It was finally agreed that the Del Monte people would buy their cans and the advertising wrappers from Germany, fill them with their products and then ship them to the Reich. . . . Maybe, come to think of it, the American Can Company, which is spending good American money to advertise its product, might have something to say about such an arrangement. . . .

Oops, 'Scuse It Please

Julius Bisno, executive secretary of the Aleph Zedek Aleph writes in to say that Sam Beber of Omaha, Neb., and not Nathan Mnookin, as was stated in the recent column, was responsible for the founding of the movement in Omaha and its subsequent adoption by Smith wires in asking that we correct the impression that he is editor of the Jewish Herald of Providence. . . . He's editor—and a darn fine one—of the Jewish Civic Leader of Worcester, Mass. . . .

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Takes Up For Metropolitan Centers

To the Editor:

Adeline Morris, who had an interesting letter in last week's issue about the joys of small town life, gave a complete explanation of these views when her opening sentence declared she had spent her entire life in small towns.

I know that there is a sentimental glamor attached to small-town life that is supposed to inspire song writers and bring middle-aged industrial magnates back for infrequent fishing excursions with Harry and the boys, but I doubt that anyone who has lived in a metropolitan community such as New York or Boston really prefers life in Gopher Prairie.

Miss Morris says Jewish life is more full in the small town. In what way? New York, being the center of American Jewish life, has every Jewish organization one could think of. It is national or world headquarters for many of the more important organizations. Where Miss Morris has a "small but complete" synagogue, I have my choice of scores, with some of the most brilliant rabbis in America occupying the pulpits. I can hear the best cantors, the finest Jewish music. The most informed speakers on Jewish topics appear before New York audiences. If I want to read on Jewish subjects, I have available the great New York Public Library, from which I can get probably any book I want.

As to life in general, again I think Miss Morris is wrong. I too have many non-Jewish friends, who apparently are not deeply concerned because we have differing religious views. My father, too, belongs to civic organizations (not the Rotary) having both Jewish and non-Jewish members. While I hear a lot about Jewish oppression, it hasn't as yet touched me personally, or at least not directly. Maybe I cannot get a position with some big firm because they will not employ Jews, but probably I couldn't get one in a small town because the town only has a few positions to offer. So what's the difference.

Finally, Miss Morris says small town Jews are probably more observant. Where do they get Kosh-er food?

Would Like To Meet Girl Who Shuns Drinking

To the Editor:

I am interested, even excited, about the news item which states that thirty per cent of the girls attending the Tech Menorah Society's dance say they do not drink. I would like to meet just one of them—preferably one that isn't too far from accepted standards of feminine pulchritude, but I wouldn't insist on this relatively minor point.

My objection to the drinking girl does not (regrettably, perhaps) spring from any deep-seated moral viewpoint. With me, it is a question of finances—my finances. A date with the average "drinking girl is synonymous with "finis" to the monthly allowance. And anyway, I am always under the table before the girl gets mellowed up, which certainly isn't my object in providing liquid refreshments.

$50,000 Charity Gift Is Praiseworthy

To the Editor:

The plan to honor Mrs. Kohut with a gift of $50,000 to charity in honor of her fifty years of work is as sane as it is admirable.

Mrs. Kohut is eminently worthy of this mark of esteem which is to be bestowed upon her, and the form which the honor takes will no doubt be particularly pleasing to one who has spent half a century laboring for others. Too often recognition of good work is delayed until death has stilled the heart and hand of the worker, and then the "honors" are likely to be largely sonorous phrases and a shaft of cold granite which serves no one.

For selecting this form of tribute to a splendid woman, Fannie Hurst and her co-workers deserve highest praise.

Tells Slips In Boycott

NEW YORK (JTA)—Many a device is employed by German business and the Nazi government to break the stranglehold of the anti-Nazi boycott. But boycott-breaking activities are not limited by the borders of the Reich. Many American importers and dealers yield to the temptation offered by cheaper wholesale prices and join with a will in trying to trick unwary Americans into buying German goods.

Ruses used in the United States by the receivers of German goods fall into the categories of legal and illegal. There are a number of technically legitimate methods of concealing the origin of German goods. For instance, there are many products made in the United States of raw materials imported from Germany. These proudly flaunt the "made in U.S.A." legend although the German exporter receives profit on the transaction.

O.K. If Labor American

If labor is done on a product in the United States, the seller technically has the right to mark it "Made in U.S.A." Thus, there is a widely-used thumb tack that is imported into the United States where a celluloid head is added. The tack sells as an American product.

Another example is a sewing-machine device that is brought in from Germany. When it arrives here an extra part is soldered on, and then it sells as an American product.

Yeast is brought into the United States from Germany in great quantities in barrels. It is repacked in pound quantities and wrapped. It then sells as an American yeast.

The same is true for many other products which can be imported in bulk, particularly chemicals and, to a lesser degree, artists' pigments.

Almost All Gloves German

Americans interested in boycotting German goods must face the fact that almost every well-known make of leather glove is manufactured from skins imported from Germany.

They must face the fact that an infinite number of products are made in the United States from German materials. One person on the staff of a boycott organization recently had the experience of buying a raincoat. He examined it carefully and finally satisfied himself that it was of an American make. He was nonplussed to learn later from a man in the business that the material of which his coat was made was obtainable only in Germany.

Abuses that have crept into the marking of goods have forced the New York State Legislature to pass a special amendment to the penal law against obliterating and concealing labels of origin.

This act supplements the Federal tariff act of 1930. The federal act provides that "every article imported into the United States... shall be marked, stamped, branded or labeled in legible English words... to indicate the country of origin...." A maximum penalty of $5,000 is set for violation of the act.

Yet importers have attempted to evade this law. For a while goods were sold marked "made in Dresden" or "made in Saxony," but this practice has been halted by a ruling that the country of origin must be noted, not the city or province.

Labels Changed

Some retailers carry on clear violation of the law by obliterating the mark of origin. Many convictions have been obtained under the New York State law, but most states lack a similar law. Once the goods have passed through the port, federal authorities are not very exacting in preventing obliteration by retailers.

Even in New York, retailers anxious to realize the extra profit on German goods paste price labels over the labels of origin and later plead that it was done by mistake.

The Journal of Commerce in New York lists all shipments received at the Port of New York and the importers to whom the shipments are made. But this was inconvenient for firms which were not anxious to have it known they were dealing in German products. Consequently, of late there has been a remarkable rise in the number of shipments made to American importers from Germany "to order." This means the importer presents the order at the dock and his name is shrouded in anonymity.

Perhaps the most noxious boycott-breaking practice carried on in this country is the use of Jewish salesmen. These salesmen represent German firms and present to prospective purchasers the argument that they cannot be censured for buying German products when they buy from Jews.

Some of the salesmen go so far as to say they have families in Germany suffering as a result of Nazi discrimination and plead with the prospects to buy their wares so that their families may have food.

This practice has been especially common in the wine industry and there is evidence that many restaurants and hotels give in to the glib arguments of these salesmen.

HOLLYWOOD—Did you know that the four Warner brothers, Harry, Albert, Sam (now deceased), and Jack made film history? That they are accredited with numerous "firsts" in the march of progress up Cinema Lane? Since 1900 they have been connected with all phases of this business, exhibition, distribution, production. In 1925 they were the first producers to become interested in sound apparatus, and for a year carried on experiments with sound-on-film in their New York studios. In 1926 they produced the first moving picture with a synchronized musical accompaniment—"Don Juan." The following year they were first in the field with a movie in which talking was heard—Al Jolson talked a little and sang much in "The Jazz Singer." In 1928 they produced the first all-talking film, "Lights of New York." And in 1935 they are the first to give Shakespeare a hearing.

In cognizance of the Warners' contribution to cinema development, the Film Museum Library is compiling the life story of the brothers for documentation. And the Warners have presented to the library prints of the first talking pictures and other data concerning sound development.

George E. Stone's role in "Anthony Adverse" won't worry him... but his makeup will. He's to play, Sanchez the "Cat"... a special makeup of face and wig that requires eight hours to put on (with practice he can do it in four) is necessary to suggest his feline character.

Rubinoff discloses the reason why a stand-in was necessary for his Stradivarius while making "Thanks a Million." The company which insures the instrument feared it would be damaged under the powerful klieg lights and so demanded a part-time substitute.

George Givot had his schnozzle rebuilt to a modern design... and he may suddenly emerge as a romantic film star... who nose?

News item states that Joe Penner, as a youngster, sang in a church choir. What? A would-be chassin who has come to naught but quacks?

Two of Cantor's doubles have each broken a leg stunting for him in his new picture.

Cantor does one stunt himself... makes a parachute dive while hanging onto Parkyarkus' feet, falls into a circus net, and lands in the hands of the men on the flying trapeze.

Eddie averages about four hours sleep a night these days (or a day these nights... have it your own way) because shooting on "Shoot the Chutes" requires most of the day and preparation for his broadcasts most of the night.

And by the way, Cantor broadcasts twice each Sunday... although you only hear him once. He goes on the air at 5 p. m. for the 8 p. m. eastern program... and again at 1 p. m. for the western eight o'clock tuner-inners.

Arthur Caesar... visiting his old cronies in New York before his hop to London... had to take a good deal of ribbing. Some of his pals made sly digs about his polo activities in Hollywood. "Why not? Why shouldn't I play polo?" snorted Caesar. "I love horses. In fact I was brought up with horses—only they had wagons attached!"

From all the child actors in Hollywood George Breakston was selected by Max Reinhardt for his Broadway production of "Road of Promise."

Feeling the need for thrift after losing thirty dollars on a bet, Manny Seff, the pen-pusher, took out an old suit of clothes from the closet as suitable enough for work. In the pockets he found three ten-dollar bills!

Holland To Veto Games

AMSTERDAM (JTA)—Rising sentiment in the Netherlands against participation in the Berlin Olympic Games evidenced itself this week in the calling of a protest mass meeting and the decision by an important Dutch sports organization not to send a delegation to the games.

After taking a referendum among its members, the Netherlands Athletic Association decided to keep its Olympic delegation home.

The public meeting was called for Nov. 20 by the Dutch Committee for the Defence of the Olympic Ideal, an organization agitating for withdrawal of Holland from the games. Among those who will participate in the rally are H. Putters, president of the Catholic Football Association of Amsterdam and A. J. Sanders, former president of the Dutch Billiard Union. The Billiard Union recently decided not to participate in tournaments in which German teams are entered.

Bernhardt Vandam, president of the committee, declared to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that the committee is absolutely unpolitical. "It is Germany that has made politics of sports," he said.

Greek Lines Style Note

Women today look like goddesses in the style parade of soft, supple silks and silk sheers which are draped, shirred and pleated a la Grecque.

The classic Greek silhouette is particularly adaptable to our day and age. The women of Greece had magnificent form. Athletics were a ritual. Power, grace, freedom of movement were sought in the mode. A philosophic era imparted a look of calm dignity. Athletic young woman today who scorn the waspish waists and plouetting skirts of our coyer modes of Grecian inspiration with their sweater and skirts and military soutache. Older women, too, find the draped theme adds, charms, softens and dignifies.

Fabric has new importance in the modes. Supple silks that drape peerlessly, shir softly, and flatter five pounds off the figure are queen of the mode. The Greeks had a word for it which interpreted in today's fashions meant the "sculptural" dress with classic folds and shirring.

Velvety silk sheers, gleaming silk lames, silk satins classical in white or pale blue, novelty silk crepes, and gauzy metal silk sheers are all part of the sculptured mode.

Women today are looking like Greek goddesses in gowns of soft silk with bodices which are softly draped and folded across the front and easily bloused in back. Silk evening gowns of this persuasion are flowing in line, with fullness coming from the waistline and spreading softly around the ankles. Sometimes the skirts themselves are draped around up to one hip, and caught there by bows, clusters of shirring or buckles which accent the draped movement.

Worried By Name

BERLIN (JTA)—The town fathers of Judenbach, a village near Sonneberg, were pondering this week the old, old question of "what's in a name?"

Suddenly acutely conscious of the fact that were out-of-step with the rest of "Aryanized" Germany by virtue of the fact that their town bears a name which, literally translated, means "Jews' Brook," they called a special meeting for the purpose of changing the name. The town's scions, however, decided to move cautiously in the matter, announcing that before they took the step of changing the Jewish name they would investigate thoroughly the circumstances under which it had been acquired.

Captain, Three Regulars Play For Huskies

PULLMAN, Wash. (Spl.)—Some kind of a record for Jewish players on the West Coast is being established at the University of Washington here where four Jewish players are regulars on the Husky eleven.

Led by Captain Dan Lazaravitch, the quartet includes Ted and Vic Markov and Abe Shper. Markov is a sophomore and is displaying remarkable talent.

Sports writers here jokingly refer to the four as the "Huskies' Hebrews."

MONASH GREAT GENERAL

year Sir John Monash would almost certainly have risen to an army command and might even have risen to commander-in-chief. He probably had the greatest capacity for command in modern war among all who held command.

A prosperous engineer when the war broke out, Monash had the rank of colonel in the Australian militia and no previous war experience. Gallipoli was his first taste of war but he distinguished himself by his mastery of organization and military tactics and strategy. His rise was steady, from command of a brigade to a division, to the Australian Army Corps. His word carried increasing weight in strategy planning. He led his troops to brilliant successes at Messines, Ypres, in saving the line of the Somme and checking the German slash at Amiens.

Planned 1918 Offensive

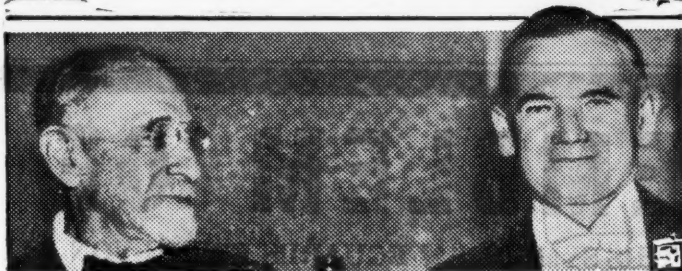

But, as it is now known, General Monash originated the scheme and worked out most of the details for the great offensive of August, 1918, and the second offensive undertaken the following month, which finally broke the Hindenburg line and brought the war to an end. In both these offensives, the spearheads were the troops under his own command—in the second offensive these included two American divisions—the 27th Yankee Division, and the 30th.

A great deal of the personality and character of the man is revealed in these letters most of which were written throughout the war to his wife and daughter back home. His concern for his troops, his attention to every detail and his ability to convey by word a comprehensive understanding of what he is relating are reminiscent of Caesar's "Gallic Wars." I doubt that Caesar in his graphic descriptions of an army at work surpasses Monash's description of a modern army at work even though the latter writer had to suppress important details because of the censorship.

"My command is more than two and a half times the size of the British Army under the Duke of Wellington, or of the French Army under Napoleon Bonaparte at the battle of Waterloo," he wrote after his appointment as corps commander. "Moreover I have in the army corps an artillery which is more than six times as powerful as that commanded by the Duke of Wellington. I have besides arms services and departments not dreamt of in his day, all of the highest scientific complexity."

Yet his grasp of the problems involved in commanding so large a force was so complete that he was able to evolve a traffic system to prevent delay in forwarding supplies to the front, to form a pool of men's socks with a huge

Morgenthau, Sr. With Mahoney At Banquet

Sport and civic leaders joined in the banquet to honor Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the A.A.U., last week in New York. Above are Mr. Mahoney, right, and Henry Morgenthau, Sr., former Ambassador to Turkey, and father of the present Secretary of the Treasury.

New Utrecht Boy May Make Team

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (Spl.)—As the Indiana University basketball team prepares for its opening game of the season Dec. 6 against Ball State, Willie Silberstein, speedy sophomore, is working out daily with the first five and advance dope has it that he may be able to crack a lineup which is composed of veterans.

Only one member of the first five graduated last June, and to fill his position numerous juniors and seniors are available. Nevertheless, Silberstein's style of play has convinced Coach Everett Dean he is worthy of a trial.

Willie hails from Brooklyn, N. Y., where as a member of the New Utrecht High School quintet he made the All-Scholastic Stars team in the city. He is only 5 ft. 9 in. high, but agile floorwork makes up easily for his lack in height.

fresh pair of socks each day, and to take care of every need of his men.

Hated War

To a letter suggesting that after the war he might make the Army his career, he replied:

"You say I might take up military work as a profession after the war? I hate the business of war, the horror of it, the waste, the destruction, and the inefficiency. Many a time I could have wished that wounds or sickness, or a breakdown of health would have enabled me to retire honourably from the field of action—like so many other senior officers. My only consolation has been the sense of faithfully doing my duty to my country, which has placed a grave responsibility upon me, and to my division which trusts

Fight For Guard Position At USC

LOS ANGELES, Cal. (Spl.)—The struggle for running guard berth on the University of Southern California eleven has been settled for the time being with Joe Wilensky, dependable gridster, winning out over "Butch" Brouseau. Although not a flashy player, Wilensky is exceedingly dependable. His teammates value his playing because of his grit and uncomplaining attitude.

and follows me, and I owe something to the 20,000 men whose lives and honour are placed in my hands to do with as I will.

"But my duty once done, and honourably discharged, I shall with a sigh of relief, turn my back on the possibility of ever again having to go through such an awful time. Of course, if Australia wants my service in some administrative capacity in connection with her future army, permitting me the freedom of an independent citizen, well, that is another matter, but not unless it becomes necessary for our bread and butter, and all other means had failed, would I dream of becoming a paid servant of the State in any capacity whatever. I have fought all my life for personal independence, and shall not give up what I have won except as a last resort."

KAUFMAN STARS

PRINCETON, N. J. (Spl.)—Chick Kaufman, shifty halfback on the mighty Princeton juggernaut, against Harvard last Saturday, played a bang-up game, scoring one of the five touchdowns. He is a senior letterman on the Tiger eleven.

Grossman Scores 2 Touchdowns In Rutgers's Win

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (Spl.)

—A Jewish star named Bob Grossman, halfback running ace of the Rutgers eleven, led his team to victory against the undefeated Boston University team 12-6 last Saturday.

Grossman scored both of the Rutgers touchdowns, slicing through tackle early in the fourth quarter for the tally that clinched the game. His initial touchdown came after a 54-yard drive in the second quarter.

Two other Jewish players in the Rutgers lineup, both of whom turned in good accounts of themselves, were Zimmerman at center and Blumberg, quarterback. The sole Jewish player in the Boston lineup was Adler, another center.

SPITZ HEADS R-K-O

CHICAGO (Spl.)—Leo Spitz, Chicago motion picture attorney, has been named president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation to succeed Merlin B. Aylesworth.

TEAM WANTS GAMES

Formation of the Secos, basketball quintet representing the Salvage Equipment Company, of Indianapolis, was announced by Abe Goldsmith, manager. The team, which will be composed of some of the members of the original Indianapolis Buddies Club and ex-high school performers, is seeking to arrange games with local and state teams. Write to the firm at 703 W. New York Street, or phone Lincoln 1831 for information.

COLOGNE, Germany (JTA)—A Jew who refused the demand of Nazi authorities that he be separated from his "Aryan" wife was separated forcibly by a one-year jail term.

The Jew, whose name was not revealed, was civilly married to his wife in 1932, before the Nazi race laws were enacted.
